

DATA LOGGERS

Data Loggers are used for long term recording of humidity and temperature measurements essential in many production, storage, display and test applications.

They provide valuable information on the levels and variation of humidity and temperature, which can have a significant impact on people, materials and objects.

They can also be used to measure Relative Humidity, mV, mA, Volts, Pulses (or counts), Shocks etc.